

Sentence Set

The California Adult Authority today announced that it may set the prison term of Ronald F. Kaehler, 24, of San Mateo, son of the president of the San Francisco Stock Exchange, at six years.

Kaehler was convicted of manslaughter in the retail shooting of Lloyd Winfield Stone, 25, during a drinking party in front of Kaehler's fashionable San Mateo apartment a year ago. He had been sentenced to from one to 10 years.

A six-year term usually allows four years and two months of parole time for time off for good behaviour. Kaehler may be eligible for parole 11 months from now.

Opposition to the parole of Kaehler this month was indirectly stated by the state's bondsmen to the parole board in May by Superior Judge Edmund Scott and Dist. Atty. Gilbert D. Ferrell.

"This subject was fortunate in being convicted of manslaughter rather than second degree murder, and we suggest that the board of prison terms and paroles consider this fact in fixing length of time

The fatal shooting took place Apr. 2, 1946, during an argument over ownership of a car. Kaehler was charged with murder, but a jury returned a verdict finding him guilty of manslaughter.

Rites Read

Gloria Zangari and Frank Denney were married on Sunday at 1 p.m. before the flower banked fire-place in the home of Mrs. Anne

The bride wore a gown of nylon net over satin and a double strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. Her veil was held by a Juliet cap of seed pearls. Her bridal bouquet was composed of bouvardia and gladioli.

Mrs. Bianchini attended the bride as matron of honor. She wore a gown of pink crepe styled with a V-neckline and long sleeves, and a peplum. Her bouquet was gardenias and pink sweetpeas.

Earle Phillips served the bridegroom as best man.

The ceremony was conducted before the members of the immediate families, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas mont are the bridegroom's parents. Nicholas Zangari Jr., younger brother of the bride, played "I Love You Truly" on the piano as the bride was escorted into the living room by her father.

Mrs. Frank Denny

A reception was held following the ceremony in the Bianchini home. The three tiered wedding cake, surrounded by ferns and gardenias, was the centerpiece of the table and was flanked by white candles. Before leaving on a wedding trip, the young couple cut their wedding cake.

For her going away ensemble the bride chose a powder blue suit with brown bead neck and bag. On her shoulder she pinned an orchid corsage. When they return, the just-weds will make their home in Redwood City.

The bridegroom, who served for three years with the navy in the Pacific area, is employed in Palo Alto. Gloria is associated with the Montgomery Ward Co. in Redwood City.

Pleads Guilty

Harold B. Plegedahl, 37, of Burlingame, pleaded guilty Tuesday

Scott to a charge of driving filed as a result of an accident in which one

Sagerdahl, who changed his plea from not guilty, asked for probation and will be sentenced by Judge Scott on July 21 at 2:30 p.m.

An earlier charge of manslaughter against Sagerdahl was dismissed two weeks ago when Judge Scott held that there was no evidence of wilfulness or gross negligence in the accident.

The victim was Clarence McCleod, 19-year-old Brisbane Acres merchant seaman who was killed on April 12 when he and his wife, Helen, were walking along Bayshore Hwy. to their home after attending a moving picture. Mrs. McCleod was injured.

Sagerdahl was arrested a few days later along a highway patrol car and was taken to the hospital at the scene of the accident to Sagerdahl's car.

Miss Harper said the city library building was pointed out as one of the most outstanding at the American Library Assn. session last week in San Francisco.

She also said that Margaret Goodloe, children's librarian for five years, had resigned to accept a position at McKinley School.

No replacement has yet been found.

Under the Courthouse Dome

By Ray Spangler

There is before the governor a bill to suspend driving privileges of persons of proven inability to pay for accident damages.

It would probably be an even better idea to require everyone driving an automobile to produce a satisfactory policy of insurance, or to show that he is adequately self-insured.

Before this is accomplished, however, some preliminary work must be done in the field of insurance itself.

In the first place, the accident toll is so serious that the insurance companies have upped their rates to the point where some marginal buyers can't afford used cars. That is, the cost of the insurance required for financing term payments is the difference between buying and driving without.

Not all cars are insurable.

Vehicles seven years old and older seldom qualify for comprehensive coverage. Policies on cars 10 years old are difficult to place, and then only on the basis of $50 deductible for collision damages.

Cars of 1934 and prior vintage must be accompanied by brake inspection certificates and a mechanical report.

Not all drivers are insurable, regardless of the vehicle.

A person financing a used car, and who is not well established in the community will find difficulty.

If the car is registered to a "teenager," the policy is difficult to place and usually carries a restriction called a "student endorsement." The policy is good while the car is driven by the registered owner or members of his family, but it is void if another student drives the car.

Cemetery Claimed

At long last Redwood City's Union Cemetery has an official owner and funds have been appropriated for its upkeep.

Governor Warren has signed a measure appropriating $1500 for the upkeep of the cemetery during the 1947-48 fiscal year. The governor earlier had signed a bill making the cemetery state property.

It is the first time since 1859 that provision has been made for upkeep of the cemetery, located on Woodside Rd. just off Five Points. Bills for the state to accept deed to the property and to appropriate funds were drawn up by Assemblyman Richard Dolwig of South San Francisco. The bills subsequently passed both the house and the senate.

Money will be turned over to Redwood City to hire personnel to keep the cemetery—an eyesore to the community for the most part of every year—in good shape.

The bill signed by Governor Warren accepting deed to the six acres of property ratifies action of Gov. John Weller in 1859. Governor Weller accepted deed to the cemetery at that time but since his action was never ratified, the cemetery has been a founding until now.

First efforts to obtain state care were made during the Polk administration and have been continued at most legislative sessions since then. Councilman Floyd D. Granger has been one of the staunchest backers of the measure to secure state aid for the upkeep of the property.

Each year the city has spent between $700 and $800 cleaning up the cemetery for Memorial Day. Otherwise the plot has been left to the weeds except for a Grand Army of the Republic plot, which has been kept up by San Mateo County.

The property formerly was part of the Rancho de las Pulgas and was deeded to Governor Weller by six owners. All members of the Union Cemetery Assn. in whose benefit it was to be administered are now dead.

No one can now be buried at the cemetery except those who have title to the property or are heirs of cemetery property holders.

School Moves

The California School of Gardening started moving today to its new home on Santa Cruz Ave. just west of Alameda Rd. Elsa Upman, Knoll, owner and operator of the school, said the transfer would take several days.

Removal of the school from the site it has occupied for 11 years on the Roble Bridge Rd. near the Stanford Golf Course is a part of the university's program of recovering for its own use land leased for non-university purposes.

Small lath houses and greenhouses, with their treasures of growing trees, shrubs, vines and perennials, were first to go. The Knoll house will be razed last and the owners do not expect to settle into it until the water company has had time to catch up with its work and get the pipes in.

Until the new place is developed, the gardening school will be in recess, Mrs. Knoll said today. It has been training students as graduate gardeners.

The Santa Cruz Ave. property is the site of an old orchard. Its sloping land will lend itself effectively to landscaping, the owners believe. Mrs. Knoll is assisted by Lana Vestal Christensen. The latter, with her husband, Andrew Christensen, have bought a home adjoining the Knoll property.

It is difficult for a Negro to obtain a policy of automobile insurance regardless of his financial condition or driving record.

I am told that the reason for this is not a discrimination by the insurance companies based on racial prejudice on their part.

It is, rather, their interpretation of the racial prejudices of white jurors in automobile cases involving Negroes.

It is the insurance companies' belief that there is greater danger of an unfavorable verdict against a colored driver than there is against a white driver.

For that reason they are not at all anxious for such business. Agents who have a sufficient volume of business with a given company are often able to jam through a policy for a Negro client, but usually as a special favor or as an accommodation.

Formerly it was equally difficult to obtain policies for drivers of Japanese ancestry. That discrimination is disappearing.

There is something fundamentally wrong with a system that does not treat all applicants equally on their individual merits, regardless of race, color or creed.

Few of us are rich enough to insure ourselves against loss in automobile accidents.

If the state is anxious to have none but insured drivers on the highways, then there is an obligation on the part of the state to make such insurance equally available to its citizens.

So long as there is a color line in the insurance business—based on the racial prejudices of white jurors—there can be no uniform law requiring all persons to carry automobile insurance.

Ask More Recreation

Recreation facilities, more theaters, and a better shopping district is desired by Redwood City residents, according to a Tribune survey taken today along Broadway.

Albert H. Morgan, chairman of the City Planning Commission, 1233 Harrison Ave., remarked that he would enjoy any improvements made in the city, but specifically, he would like to see better store fronts and better lighting of the stores at night.

Charles Murray, jeweler, 2069 Broadway, is an advocate of remodeling, who thinks the town is on a par with those with much less population. Whole blocks should be torn down and rebuilt, according to Murray, and a more desirable shopping district created.

Phillips Hastings, Emerald Lake real estate broker, advanced the view that more display and variation in the shopping district is needed; and also suggested that a public parking lot would be to great advantage.

Bill McSweeney, student, 304 Oak Ave., and Mrs. Frank Russo, housewife, 853 Vista Dr., agree that better theaters are desirable. More competition is needed, according to McSweeney, and Mrs. Russo advocates "shows that start on time."

"Teenagers put in a special plea for bigger and better recreation centers and playgrounds."

Helen Martin, 234 Jackson, and Connie Jones, 550 Iris, high school sophomores, believe the present recreation spot could see many improvements. It should be "larger, efficiently managed and the people more friendly." The girls suggested the Behrens' Estate as an ideal ground for tennis courts and a swimming pool.

Mickey Estes, 253 Center, is enthused about a playground for young people which includes swings, slides, merry-go-rounds and a baseball field to keep them off the streets. Also of the younger set, Pat Kelly, 1661 Union Ave., has ideas for an improved recreation center with dancing, ping pong and clubs. A gleeful club, swimming club, and craft clubs were given as examples of the activities which would interest the high school group.

Mrs. Vera Henckle, clerk, 327 Jeter St., and Mrs. Mable Leon, violin teacher, 1504 Middlefield Rd., side with the teenagers on the question of recreation centers and playgrounds. Mrs. Leon also advises that gates or an underpass be constructed near the railroad tracks on Broadway to avoid accidents.

Guy Reynolds, mail messenger, 432 Alden, believes that the sewer should be enclosed and Mrs. Harry Eakins, housewife, 1001 Grand Ave., agrees that something should be done about the smelly creek.

A man who wished to remain unidentified was firm in the belief that there should be a more progressive spirit among the merchants of Redwood City. More chain stores and more competition is needed to make the town more colorful and competitive with surrounding towns, according to him.

The Prowler

AT LAST WE HAVE A state law in California, becoming effective Sept. 20, which requires that the dishes from which one eats or drinks in restaurants or drinkeries, as well as the spittoons that adorn the floors of saloons and other public places, must be cleaned in accordance with a prescribed formula.

Hitherto the state law has been particular about the cuspidors, but totally indifferent to the dishes.

The change is due to this year's legislature's addition of a new chapter to the restaurant sanitation law, including some, but not all, of the provisions of the measure of similar purpose that was advocated in this column two years ago but which failed to make the grade at that time because of the opposition of most of the industries that would have been regulated by it.

The new law requires that all multi-use eating and drinking utensils at public eating and drinking places "shall be thoroughly cleaned and then effectively subjected to one of the following approved bactericidal processes after each usage:

"(a) Immersion for at least one-half minute in clean, hot water at a temperature of at least 180 degrees Fahrenheit.

"(b) Immersion for at least one-half minute in a chlorine bath containing at least 100 parts per million at all times of available chlorine if hypochlorites are used, or a concentration of equal bactericidal efficiency if chloramines are used.

"(c) Any other method approved by the State Department of Public Health."

UNDER THIS LAW IT no longer will be legitimate for restaurant workers to dry dishes with cloths already filthy from having been used to wipe off stoves, sinks, tables or counters, or that have been used for mopping the perspiring brows, hands or arms of the workers. The new law says: "Drying cloths, if used, shall be clean and shall be used for no other purpose."

THE NEW LAW, IF fully observed, will also protect the restaurant diner from the possibility of having ashes from the chef's cigaret fall into the food. It also outlaws the wearing of aprons decorated with historic souvenirs from meals of former days. It provides, too, a modicum of protection against the possibility of having the bushy tresses of girl workers brushing against or falling into the food being handled.

These points are covered by the section of the law reading:

"All employees and owners while engaged in the preparation or serving of food in a restaurant shall wear clean outer garments, shall keep their hands clean, and shall not expectorate or use tobacco in any form while so engaged. Female employees shall wear hair net caps, or other suitable covering which confines the hair."

PROVISIONS ARE INCLUDED as to the size, location, appointments, ventilation, condition, and uses of the restaurant toilets. "No toilet room shall be used for the storage of garments, food products or utensils," says the act.

Another important section says: "Adequate and convenient handwashing facilities shall be provided within or adjacent to toilet rooms, including running water, soap, and approved sanitary towels, in all restaurants. The use of a common towel is prohibited. No employee or owner shall resume work in a restaurant after visiting the toilet without first washing his hands, and legible signs shall be posted in each toilet room directing to this requirement."

CRACKED, NICKED OR broken dishes, which provide handy havens for germs and ancient bits of decaying food, are also outlawed for restaurant use by this act.

THOSE ARE HIGHLIGHTS of the new law. The act is by no means complete. Certain other provisions would have been beneficial from the public health standpoint, such as an injunction against food handlers to handle money also. When a chop-house chef alternates the handling of dirty coins with the patting of hamburgers with his bare hands, and when sandwich makers switch from handling bread and sandwich filling to the making of change for customers, there is an inevitable mingling of food and germs that has its obvious health hazards for patrons.

On the theory, however, that part of a loaf is better than no loaf, this act can be welcomed as an important contribution to the public health cause.

Of course the mere enactment of the law does not mean the automatic abolition of all the insanitary conditions and practices that long have prevailed at many public eating and drinking resorts. There remains the very important job of enforcement.

Beginning Sept. 20, however, customers when complaining to the management about various insanitary practices that they may have seen in an eating or drinking establishment can do so with the strengthening assurance that the law of the state is on their side.

YOU MAY RECALL MY recent column about the casualness with which many office girls of the younger crop assume their jobs—coming late, staying at home for personal reasons without even giving notification of their intended absence, and so on. Various business men commenting on the column have said, "I thought as I read it that you must have had my office (or store) in mind. The behavior of my younger employees is exactly as you described it." The saga thereupon became enriched by a few illustrative cases.

In one office the girl new to the job announced on her first day that she wanted to take three days off right away in order to join her boy friend who would be in the state, but in another town for that period. So off she went. The next week her boy friend came visiting in her town for three days. So, conveniently, she was ill for those three days and did not report for work.

There is also the case of the girl hired as a relief worker for the vacation period. She announced to her boss after a few days, "Maybe you didn't know it, but this is my last day. I am leaving tonight to be married."

That was upsetting news to the boss. "You realize, don't you," he asked, "that there are three other girls leaving for vacations next Monday?"

Yes, she realized all that, and also that she had taken the job in order to relieve the vacationists. And so what?

She was leaving, and that was that.

COMMON EXCUSES of some employed girls who fail to show up for work are, "I had to go to the city," and "I had to do some shopping." There is always something they "had to do." The word "had" in that case means "wanted." There is no assumption of the fact that they should consider that they "have to go to work" on their regular work days, and that the job that is paying their bread-and-butter expenses should come ahead of personal wishes and miscellaneous distractions, even though the latter may be more alluring than work.

CERTAIN ESTABLISHMENTS whose workers must have specific, technical skills, are given a pre-

Griffin on Normandy

BY FRANK GRIFFIN
NORMANDY, France—On the green upland overlooking famed Omaha Beach lies a hallowed bit of America.

From a tall mast, in the soft wind of Normandy, the flag of the United States rose and dipped in salute to the memory of her sons who today lie beneath the white crosses of the U. S. Military Cemetery at St. Laurent.

As Al Bechet and I stepped from our small French car, the local superintendent of the American Graves Registration Command approached, introduced himself and bade us welcome.

For some time we walked along the clean gravel paths where, to either side and atop a magnificently-kept shroud of green rows of white crosses stood as silent sentinels to American courage and sacrifice.

Over 3000 American youth rest in St. Laurent—those who were killed in the battles of Omaha Beach and the paratroopers who, the night before D-Day, infiltrated the German rear in a pincer-support of their landing.

We requested permission to photograph sections of the cemetery and the superintendent readily assented, reminding us only that it was possible to photograph individual graves.

To our questioning glance, the superintendent explained. Relations of soldiers and friends were interested—men of the First and Third U. S. Armies whose divisions participated in the American breakthrough and in the liberation of St. Mihiel and the Brittany Peninsula.

Before reaching St. James, Al had stopped and obtained a wreath of Normandy flowers. For the first time in the trip, he was accompanied by a young American corporal accompanying us stood aside. Al placed the wreath atop the grave of his friend and knelt in quiet prayer.

Artificial flowers, he later explained, are not permitted on the graves, but if such are brought for permanent memorial, a special sanctuary is provided.

Somewhat in the rear of Utah Beach, the long strand of wide, sloping sand whereon poured American men and stores, is the U. S. Military Cemetery of St. Mere Eglise.

It was throughout this area that at dusk before the morning of invasion, waves of American aircraft dropped their thousands of paratroopers. Here the Americans met head-on the German anti-aircraft troops and, short of ammunition, fought with knives while awaiting the arrival of armored support which had landed at Utah Beach.

Today many of these boys rest at St. Mere Eglise. And among them lies the mortal remains of Brigadier-General Theodore Roosevelt, courageous son of illustrious father.

Past 60, General Roosevelt had insisted upon remaining up front with his men. Together they sleep at St. Mere Eglise.

To the credit of the government of the United States let it be of record that a thankful nation has done all that is humanly possible to accord its fallen sons the tribute they have so richly earned. The flag of their country dips in quiet requiem above kingdoms of courage beautifully maintained in quiet dignity.

May they rest in peace!

Deputy O'Brien Seriously Ill

Dep. Sheriff John O'Brien was convalescing in Mills Memorial Hospital Tuesday after an emergency operation Saturday from a blood clot which passed through his heart and threatened his life.

O'Brien was injured three weeks ago while on a fishing trip near Alturas. He slipped in the creek bed, breaking both bones in his leg. He lay at the water's edge for eight hours while Mrs. O'Brien went for help, and then was carried 80 miles in a pickup truck to the Alturas Hospital.

O'Brien's brother, San Mateo Police Chief Robert O'Brien, said that a blood clot tore loose inside the leg, was carried by the blood stream through the heart and lodged in the lungs. He was reported out of danger today.

On Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry S. Close are honeymooning in Southern California. They will return to Burlingame the beginning of this week to establish their home.

The young couple was married in a quiet double-ring ceremony at 4 p. m. on Friday in the First Baptist Church in Las Vegas by the Rev. Walker Bishop.

The bride is the former Barbara Groom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Groom of Burlingame. She is a graduate of Burlingame High School and attended San Mateo Junior College and San Francisco State College. She is the sister of Mrs. Muriel Thomas and Dick Groom.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Close of San Mateo. He is a graduate of Sequoia High School and served with the 91st division for three years seeing action in the Italian theater. His mother, Mrs. Ruth Close, is the executive secretary of the San Mateo County Tuberculosis and Health Assn. and his sister, Mrs. Jan E. Close, is a representative for the San Mateo County Child Welfare. Another sister is Janis and his brothers are Jim and Jack.

Jerry graduated from San Mateo Junior College last month and now is with the Montgomery Ward Co. of Burlingame. The justweds will be at home to their friends early in August when they will move into their new home.

But hold your tears of pity for those slot machine operators. They are not compelled to engage in an illicit business. They go into it with full awareness of the risks involved.

"This is one of those days when everything goes wrong."

Action Delayed

Lacking a quorum, the Redwood City Planning Commission Tuesday was unable to take an official action on a request from the First Church of Christ, Scientist, for permission to erect a Sunday School.

Of the six-man commission only G. L. Bedbury and Francis Britschger were present. Absent were Joseph Territo, Donald Campbell, Chmn. Albert H. Morgan Jr. and John Layng.

The two commissioners present sat with Mayor W. W. Hilton, City Atty. Cuthbert Currie and Secy. Lawrence Wise to hear proposals, take them under advisement and bring them up at a commission study session in two weeks.

Representing the church was Alan J. Clarke and Architect Henry H. Gutterson. They proposed to construct a Sunday school which would be attached to the church at Brewster Ave. and Elwood St. The present church, he said, covers 27 per cent of the church land and the addition would cover another 18 per cent. This would mean that 45 per cent of the church's lot would be covered in a first residential district to 35 per cent.

Britschger said the commission would schedule a hearing at which neighbors would be given an opportunity to voice their opinion of the irregularities.

A proposal by Allen Green to subdivide a lot at 1567 Union Ave. was also taken under advisement. Wise was instructed to survey the lot for a commission report.

A request for permission to move a dwelling from 917 King St. to a lot on Jefferson Ave. between Iris and Jeter St. was given approval by the commission. Roland said the house was constructed in 1942.

MR. AND MRS. JACK DUTTWELLER (the former Virginia Schiller) who were married the latter part of April are now at home in the Sunset district, San Francisco. Jack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Duttweller of 143 Somerset, served as a marine during the war. He is now associated with his father in the motor parts sales business in San Francisco. Virginia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schmidt of 46 Frederick St., Atherton. The young couple went to Lake Tahoe on their wedding trip and returned then to San Francisco.

4 Youths Held After Hot Rod Chase

Four Redwood City youths were in custody after their arrest at 12:30 a. m. by deputy sheriffs who said they saw the boys driving about 75 miles an hour in a "hot rod."

The driver of the car, Ervin Kuhl, 18, of 31 Oak St., was held at the county jail and Chief Dep. Dist. Atty. A. S. Whitmore said he would be charged with reckless driving.

The officers also said that they planned to check to see what Kuhl was doing with a photostatic copy of the army discharge of a Raymond M. Clark of Los Angeles, and a merchant marine identification card.

The other three arrested were held at the juvenile home, booked for disturbing the peace. Two are 17 years old and one is 16.

Dep. Sheriff Ben Silverstein and Don Hartnett reported that the "hot rod" cruised past their patrol car near Five Points at between 70 and 75 miles an hour. The officers gave chase, but the "hot rod" did not stop. At Atherton Ave., the pursued car started to make a right turn, jumped the traffic as and slid into a brick wall at the intersection.

Kuhl attempted to run away and tore up the discharge papers, the deputies said. When he was collared and placed in the police car, he attempted to escape, they reported.

Hurt in Accident

Little Lynda Tooley, 3 1/2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Tooley, 2024 Arroyo Ave., San Carlos, was recuperating in Franklin Hospital in San Francisco Tuesday from a skull fracture suffered Sunday night when she fell out of an automobile in the East Bay.

It was first believed Lynda would require brain surgery, but because of her improved condition Tuesday physicians declared they did not believe it would now be necessary.

After she fell from the car, traveling between 35 and 40 miles an hour, Lynda lost the use of her right arm and leg, but she has regained the use of them, according to the physicians' reports.

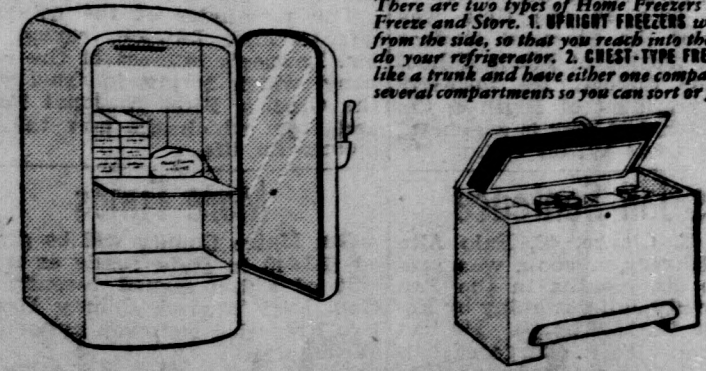

Lynda was taken by ambulance to Palo Alto Hospital and later transferred to Franklin Hospital, where she was reported today as "getting along fine."

One of the best ways to cut down food costs in your home is to "can all you can" this summer. Buy your fruits and berries and vegetables when crops come in and take advantage of low price "specials." Or if you have a garden that produces an abundance of fresh foods, save by canning or freezing the surplus. Last year, California women put up more than 4,000,000 jars of home canned foods. This year they are planning to can and freeze even more. If you would like authoritative instructions on putting up foods at home, write for the Free "Home Canning Bulletin," (No. 417) Agricultural Extension Division, University of California, 112 Giannini Hall, Berkeley 4. Home canning helps satisfy the big eaters in your family and whets the appetite of "fussy eaters." And most of all, it will save many a dollar in your food budget.
